CHURCH OF THE ANNUNCIATION

The Class of '52

On June thirteenth, 1952, another senior class will take its place among the many which have been graduated from Saint Mary's High School. For us, the seniors, graduation is more than a ceremony, because it marks a point in our lives from which we may review the past and look into the future. Our four years of high school have been profitable, and in retrospect, we can see the personalities and events which have helped us to face what lies ahead.

When we entered Saint Mary's as freshmen, we were unsure of ourselves, and the condescending stares of upper classmen made us somewhat apprehensive. We were hopeful, however, for we could see the spirit of friendliness that prevailed at Saint Mary's. The rigors of initiation were forgotten when the seniors honored us with the freshmen reception, "Out of the Cradle." Very soon, other classes had a great regard for our class, for from the beginning we showed our willingness and enthusiasm to support whole-heartedly every school function—whether athletic or social. Even in the first year our class boasted varsity football players, as well as talented artists and a representative number of honor students. It was in our first year, too, that we became acquainted with Sister M. Joan, O.P., who was our class teacher for three years, and whose foresight and guidance were to a great extent responsible for our success as a class.

In our sophomore year, we not only supported school activities, but sponsored a few ourselves. Our first dance, "Shenanigans," had an Irish theme, and even the most unpronounceable Latin name had a Gaelic flavor when the decorating committee added "O" or a "Mac" on each nameplate. In the Spring we published the sophomore Kettle. This was a significant event, for it showed the presence of potential journalists among our classmates.

In an unbelievably short time, we were juniors and upperclassmen. We plunged with vigor into the host of activities that were sponsored, for the most part, in honor of the seniors. A rainy Ascension Thursday did not dampen our spirits as we played the role of hosts at the junior-senior picnic. We chose a regal theme, "Royal Fantasy," for the dance we gave to benefit Father Hofstee's leper colony at Tala. The Junior-Senior Prom held at the Officer's Club was the occasion of initiating a new custom, that of giving each senior a bid to the dance. The romantic aura of prom night passed quickly as we faced the harsh reality of meeting the deadline for the Junior Kettle. By this time our potential journalists had become experienced and efficient, and the publication of Junior Kettle brought the year to a close.

In September 1951 we, as seniors assumed the responsible positions of the school. The cooperation which we had cultivated as lower classmen proved an asset to us as leaders of student government. It was during our senior year that the authority of the executive council was strengthened and exercised, especially in the capacity of meting out punishments on the recommendations of the proctors, to students who had violated student body regulations. Well-planned student body meetings produced several accomplishments, notably the resolution to honor the memory of Monsignor McGough by erecting a memorial in the church, and secondly the changing of the name of the yearbook "Green and White" back to its original title of "Cauldron." It was this year also that a long-awaited project was accomplished, namely, the purchasing of interclass athletic trophies, and the scheduling of interclass games. We made an especially fervent retreat under the direction of Father Leach. The culmination of our enthusiasm is the publication of the 1952 Cauldron. Every effort has been made to make this first edition of the new Cauldron one to remember. The junior-senior picnic at the Old Hearst Ranch, and the Junior-Senior Prom brought our school days at Saint Mary's to an end.

For the most part we can look back proudly over our four years at Saint Mary's. We owe a debt of gratitude to those who have made our high school days so worthwhile. We appreciate the help of our teachers, the Dominican Sisters, the sacrifices of our parents, and the lessons which our companions have, perhaps unconsciously, taught us. Our four years at Saint Mary's have strengthened us in our resolution to carry Christian principles into all our future undertakings. We leave Saint Mary's with a deep sense of gratitude and a promise on our part to be truly representative of our Church and our School.

ORGANIZATIONS

Proctors

When the bell rings for change of class, senior proctors man their posts to maintain order and quiet in the halls. Woe to him who tries to slip by them for a hasty trip to his locker!

Student Organizations

Honor Society

Diligent students who have maintained a B average or better, are eligible for membership in the Honor Society. The symbol of their achievement is the Honor Pin, bearing the Dominican shield.

Executive Council

The nucleus of student government is the executive council which meets to plan student activities, to enforce the rules of student government, and to act upon the

Sanctuary Society

To the members of the Sanctuary Society falls the privilege and duty of assisting at Masses in the parishes throughout Stockton. From freshman to senior year the altar boys take pride in the part they play in solemn functions which occur during the school year.

Block S.M.

Boys who have earned a varsity block by playing or by managing one of the three major sports, football, basketball and baseball, are eligible for membership in the Block S.M. Society. One of the chief accomplishments of the society this year was the drafting of a new constitution and the appointing of a board of directors.

suggestions of the student body. One of their accomplishments this year has been to honor the memory of Monsignor W. E. McGough by placing his portrait in the school.

Saint Mary's Unit

LOWELL BRENNAN

Lowell Brennan has the honor of being president of the Saint Mary's Unit of the Catholic Federation. One of the most active organizations in the school, the Federation through its various committees and monthly meetings, offers students the opportunity to perform worthwhile services for others, to become articulate Catholics, and at the same time to accept responsibilities which help to form the Catholic leaders of the future.

CONSTANCE GRANOSKI

Constance Granoski is chairman of the Literature Committee, a group which meets to discuss books, to develop good reading habits and to encourage interest in the Catholic Press.

JOSEPHINE ESPARZA

Led by Josephine Esparza, the Parish Activities Committee members assist the parish priests in clerical work, collect food and clothing for needy families, and volunteer their services at Saint Joseph's Hospital.

Catholic Federation

RICHARD CORDOVA

Richard Cordova is chairman of the Mission Committee which sponsors activities for the benefit of Father Hofstee at Tala as well as for the Society of The Propagation of the Faith. Each year, in addition to giving a dance for the benefit of the Missions, this committee gives a luncheon in the school cafeteria featuring Italian, Spanish and Chinese food.

DAYLE ANTONGIOVANNI

Spiritual development, the primary purpose of the Christian Life Committee, is brought to the consciousness of the students through its functions. Dayle Antongiovanni leads the committee members. Under their sponsorship the recitation of the Rosary each day at noon has brought about increased devotion to Our Lady of Fatima.

JOAN CRUZ

The Publicity Committee, while a part of the Federation, extends its services to all school activities. Chairman Joan Cruz and her assistants assume responsibility for providing timely bulletin board displays, as well as designing posters for all school functions.

For over twenty years Saint Mary's students have been working together to meet deadlines for the Kettle. Members have from year to year handed down a spirit of enthusiasm and cooperation which has made the Kettle one of the school's most cherished traditions.

Page Editors Much of the burden of publishing the Kettle is shared by the page editors who assign articles and assume the responsibility of editing and dummyming material for each page.

Typists The backbone of the Kettle Staff is the corps of willing and capable typists whose task it is to decipher the writing of would-be journalists, type stencils at the eleventh hour, and still meet the demands of page editors and mimeographer.

Sports Writers

"Manpower" for the Kettle is amply supplied by feature and sports writers, who, besides handling the masculine point of view in the news and covering the sports field, can, in an emergency, take over the tasks of mimeographer and stencilist.

Kettle

Carlene Orsolini, Editor

Perhaps no other student body office involves so much responsibility and foresight as that of Kettle editor. Without a formal journalism class, it is the editor's task to use her free time assigning articles, reading proof, and directing staff activities.

Charles Bloch, Mimeographer

It is difficult to estimate the time spent by the mimeographer, but it can be said with safety that much of the success of the Kettle is due to his skill and generosity.

Lorraine Adler, Assistant Editor

Very few, if any, stencils reach the mimeograph without passing through the hands of the assistant editor, whose work demands attention to details which may require last minute improvements or corrections.

Joan Cruz and Anita Frey, Art Editors

The original designs on Kettle covers which greet the student readers each month are the work of the art editors.

Cauldron

To the senior class of 1952 belongs the honor of restoring the title of Cauldron to the Saint Mary's year book, which for a decade has been known as The Green and White. Conscious of the high standards of former Cauldrons, the members of the staff have endeavored to make this edition a book to be enjoyed in the present and reviewed with pleasure in the future. With this aim in mind they have tried to capture a few of the joyful events and happy associations of this past year, so that having lived through them once, they may not, on receiving their diplomas, bury them forever and erase them from their memories. The spirit of Saint Mary's is intangible. It transcends the narrow focus of the camera lens, but it is hoped that these pages, reviewed in later moments of tranquillity, will recall the happy experiences of our high school days at Saint Mary's.

Choral

From the High Mass offered in honor of the Holy Ghost in September, to graduation exercises in early summer, singing plays an important part in the life of each St. Mary's student. In November, the student body sang a Requiem Mass for the first Anniversary of Monsignor McGough's death. Each year in December the senior class presents the Christmas Mimes---tableaux of the Nativity which are accompanied by chants and carols. Singing

ACTIVITIES

Lighter Moments

As every Saint Mary's student knows, a school dance is more than a social function. It is an integral part of school life, for each dance involves responsibility on the part of the committee chairmen, cooperation on the part of committee members, and generosity from all. For over eight years the Mission Committee and the sophomore, junior, and senior classes have given dances for the benefit of

The Senior class, which gives the freshman reception each year, added to the social calendar by inviting the Alumni to a dance given in their honor. The dance most eagerly awaited is the Junior-Senior Prom, the last dance of the school year.
